Displaying The Real Danger Of DUI

KVTA News Wednesday June 20, 2012

Ventura County now has its own traveling example of what can happen if you drive while under the influence. The Ventura Police Department and County Behavioral Health Department Wednesday unveiled the county's first Crashed Car Trailer at the County Government Center in Ventura. The professionally fabricated, Plexiglas enclosed, display trailer, contains the real wreckage of a vehicle involved in a fatal crash in Ventura that claimed the life of a young adult passenger. The trailer uses lighting, video displays, and signage to helps to bring home the message that driving while under the influence of drugs and alcohol can have tragic consequences. The mobile exhibit will be taken to fairs and community events around Ventura County.
